Fragrances

When winter of the soul exists,
 How sweet the fragrance brings
 The scent from roses' petals
 With the promise of Spring.
 The fragrances of grace employ
 Salvation through new hope.
 Bouquets of love and knowledge
 Are the blooms that help us cope.
 In triumphal procession
 We walk with blossoms bright,
 Sharing those wondrous fragrances
 And walking in His light.

That is Springtime

Frosted crocus in the garden are harbingers of Spring awaking from their Winter dream to hear the robins sing. The daffodils and tulips are yawning everywhere, waiting for those sunny days that warm us like a prayer. We've had our fill of ice and snow and set some record lows. We're anxious now for warmer days and the promise of a rose we have had our epiphany, enjoyed the holidays, and now the Lenten season fills every heart with praise. New leaves appear on barren trees; the grass is turning green, and throughout the countryside bluebirds have been seen. It's a time of resurrection from Winter's chilling gloom for the glory that is springtime recalls an empty tomb.
